Letter from the Editor

I came to NAUCC 2013 with a mountain of work to do for my job. It was either bring the work, or stay home. I did not want to miss it, so I lugged about 20 pounds worth of research material with me.

I skipped the U.S.A board meeting to read up on municipal water products. (Sometimes my day job is not very exciting.) I was not present when I became the new editor of OOW. Later that evening, however, I was thrilled to be invited to play a role within the Unicycling Society of America.

I have been a member of the Redford Township Unicycle Club (RTUC) since 2007. My son, Tyler McManman, joined after learning to ride in a circus class. I got bored with sitting around at practices, so I took the RTUC riding class in 2008.

The first time we travelled to NAUCC was in 2009. It was hosted by the Twin Cities Unicycle Club in Bloomington, MN.

Tyler had never ridden off-road before this convention, but he was eager to try. As such, we bought him a 24" Nimbus muni the night before the Uphill/Downhill race. The next day, we started at the uphill course. It was beautiful, but short. You could see the whole course from the bottom. At the top were two orange cones riders had pass through as a finish line.

There were between 40 and 60 riders waiting in line when we arrived. I only recognized three of them from our club. In order to get everybody in, riders were allowed two practice runs and two actual attempts.

Tyler failed miserably on his first attempt. As he waited for his 2nd trial run, strangers approached him to give him advice. They said things like, "Ride on the grass where the dirt is loose" and "Hop sideways up the steep part." He listened and put the advice to use on his next attempt, while I stood at the bottom of the hill cheering at the top of my lungs. He made it further, but didn't get close.

As he got back in line for his first actual attempt, he received even more advice. He again made it further up the course, but still didn't make it. After, he walked sullenly down the hill, completely discouraged despite never having been on a muni before that day. He wanted to quit.

People we had never seen before that day begged him not to give up. He was showered him with words of encouragement and more tips to overcoming the obstacles. I urged him to try again as well. He did. This time, he powered past the loose dirt and he successfully hopped up the steepest part. As Tyler cleared the cones at the top, the entire crowd waiting below erupted in cheers and applause. He was greeting with high fives and handshakes from people we did not know an hour and a half earlier.

It was at that moment that I fell in love with the unicycling community. This type of support and sportsmanship is typical of every unicycling event we've ever attended. For this reason, I will work hard as the editor of OOW as a way to give back to the community that has given so much to us.

With gratitude,

Shelly

Update from the U.S.A. Board

The Unicycling Society of America's board of directors met via Skype on September 8, 2013. A summary of topics discussed include:

- ◆ UNICON 17 registration is live. Most events will be open to all riders. However, track and artistic events will have limitations.
- ◆ The top three priorities for "Old Business" are online membership, updating the U.S.A. rulebook (adopting the IUF rulebook with some U.S. specific edits), and becoming tax-deductible.
- ◆ Date for NAUCC 2014 will be moved up in the year to accommodate travel to UNICON. (Tentative dates are June 29 to July 4, 2014.)
- ◆ A video contest was proposed that would feature all types of riding and award prizes. This idea needs further investigation.

NAUCC 2013 Review

By Lisa Krack

I was asked to mention some favorite bits about NAUCC 2013. It's hard for me to focus on single moments. But a few do stand out in my memory: being handed a shaved ice in my favorite flavor while instructing the road marshals for the 10K; eating watermelon on the Trials Course at the end of a long day; asking Ed, the builder, for 2 equal blocks to prop up the High Jump for the other finalists; Movie Night at the Strand, and the Strand Volunteers asking questions about the tricks in the movie; watching Jesse and Trina finish an event and cheering them on; and seeing the bear at Moraine.

One of my favorite things about attending NAUCC each year is getting to experience different parts of the country that I may not otherwise get to see. So, it was amazing to work with so many locals who were so excited about sharing their hometown with our extended unicycling family. NAUCC helped strengthen a number of local friendships. Sounds trivial, but many of our sponsors (and club members, of course) were already acquaintances. But now, after months of hard work, these same acquaintances have become friends and a number of Butler Wobble members have grown closer - and that is always a great thing for any specialized group or club!

We were also thrilled to get so much media attention. As a young unicycling club that aims to promote unicycling as a sport in which anyone of any age or ability may participate, we have few opportunities to promote unicycling as the sport that it is and to showcase the athleticism required in all the disciplines. The media coverage really helped with that goal, and as with so many alternative sports, it gave the public a glimpse at a sport we all love but of which very few outsiders even know exists.

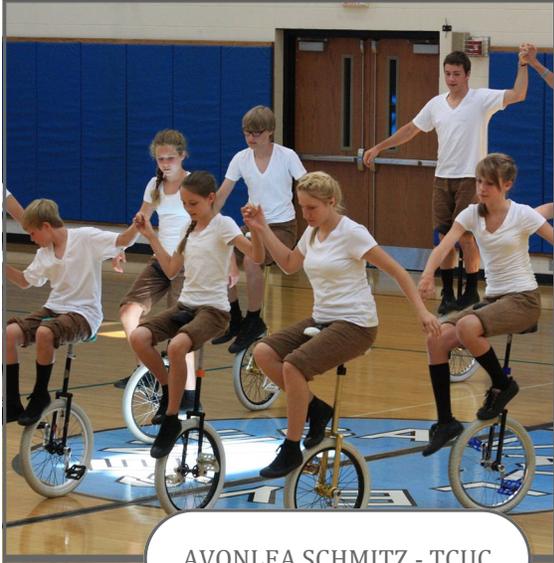

As far as our extended unicycling family goes, it was great to share our home base with all of you. We always enjoy seeing the familiar faces and making new friends. Unfortunately, we didn't get to hang out with many of you as much as we would have liked, but what is it about this group that the next time we meet, we can just pick up where we left off?

Now that NAUCC 2013 is over, the Butler Wobble continues as it did prior to the event. We just finished racing in a local mountain bike race series, Month of Mud. We meet at the Wheel Mill on Friday nights and the Butler YMCA on Saturdays. We have a FB page (<https://www.facebook.com/ButlerWobble>) if you'd like to follow our antics until we see you again!

The Redford Township Unicycle Club took most of August off from regular practices in order to spend some quality time together doing other activities like camping and tubing. We're back on schedule with regular practices. In fact, we've already begun choreographing the club routine for NAUCC 2014! In addition, we've performed in four parades and are getting ready to do America's Thanksgiving Day Parade. Watch for us Thanksgiving morning on NBC.

Fourth Annual NYC Unicycle Festival

The New York City Unicycle Festival was held on Labor Day weekend. The event is organized by Bindlestiff Family Variety Arts, Inc., along with the New York Unicycle Club, Governors Island, and the Unicycle Bridge Tour.

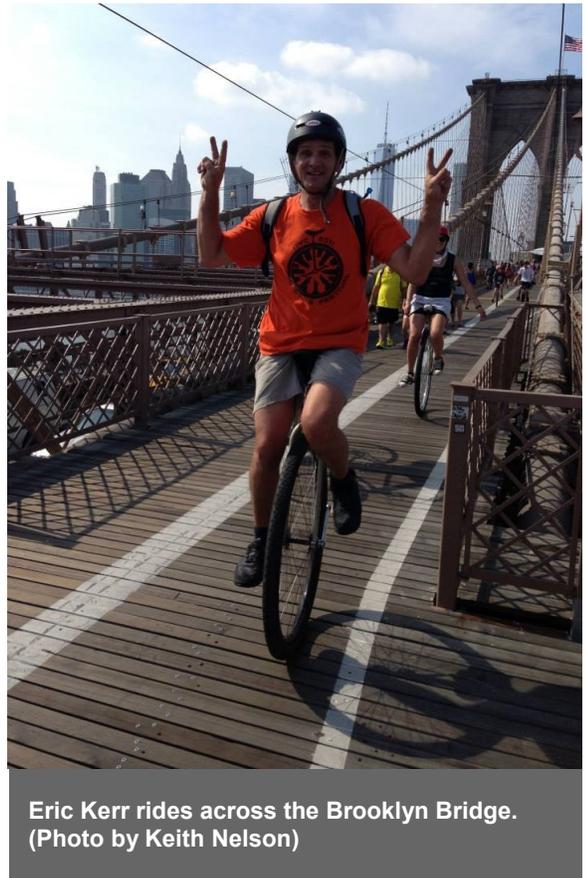

The event took place on Governors Island and other iconic places in the Brooklyn area, such as the Brooklyn Bridge (69 unicyclists crossed it!) and Coney Island. It was attended by close to 700 participants.

It featured games by the Unicycle Football League [Editor's Note: More to come on them in the next issue of OOW!], basketball, hockey, trials demonstrations, riding lessons for beginners (300 people gave it a try!), and public shows.

The Progress of Purple Mike

By Tyler McManman

Mike (a.k.a. Purple Mike) Parsons of the Redford Township Unicycle Club (RTUC) is a 47- year old, retired firefighter. He is also skilled unicycle rider. He was injured playing hockey at the NAUCC tournament when he collided with opposing goaltender, Mark Atkinson. That didn't stop him from showing up on track race day to run the one-footed and wheel-walk races. I overheard a fellow club member tell a non-RTUC unicyclist that Purple Mike intends to be the first "old dude" to reach Level 10. The unicyclists laughed.

The reaction seems reasonable from an RTUC outsider who understands how difficult it is to attain Level 10. However, it seriously underestimates the tenacity of Purple Mike. Currently, he is a Level 7 rider actively working on Level 8. He passed Level 7 on October 5, 2013, after 4 failed attempts. He has also started a movement in our club to have an additional day of open gym practice for members to attend on Tuesday nights, which he is paying for himself. During this time, as well as at our standard club practice times, he can be found in the middle of the floor constantly working on advanced skills. The picture above illustrates his level of dedication.

In preparation for his standard skills routine he took the liberty of converting a public basketball court into an official standard skill floor with paint showing the boundaries and the circles in the middle. He practiced there most of the days leading up to NAUCC. This is an excellent way for unicyclists to practice their skill levels.

Barring major injury, I think he will eventually make it to Level 10. Currently, Purple Mike estimates it will be one year before he achieves Level 8 and we hope to keep you updated on his progress.

[Editor's note: I would like to remind the reader that the views expressed by the author are not necessarily those of the U.S.A. In fact, if you paint over a public basketball court, you may face vandalism and/or property destruction charges.]

Alternative Uses for NAUCC 2013 Plaques

The organizers of this year's NAUCC created an innovative and cost effective award system compared to the medals and ribbons presented in previous years. Each competitor was given a set of two acrylic plates with registration. The first featured the beautiful NAUCC 2013 logo that was created by art teacher and graphic designer, Nate Burtner. The second was etched with label-sized rectangles. Competitors received stickers with their event place to display on the set.

However, what do you do with your plaque if you didn't place in any event? Tyler McManman demonstrates some ideas to consider:

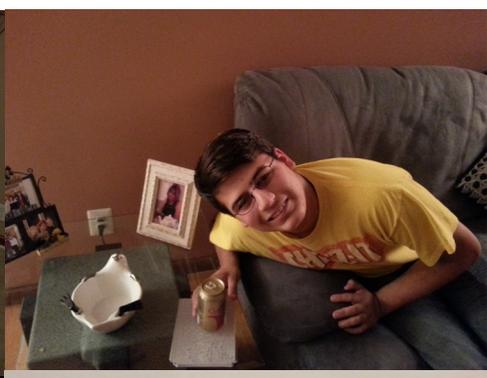

Option 1: Paint it with watercolors to make a sun-catcher.

Option 2: Use crayons or pastels to do a rubbing.

Option 3: Use it for a coaster to prevent unsightly rings.

Tyler created this lovely greeting card with his pastel rubbing.

New Unicycle.com Booth

There is always a mad dash to the Unicycle.com booth when it opens at the annual NAUCC events. This year attendees had the privilege of shopping in company's newly designed travel booth. The setup allowed more room to browse for replacement parts and accessories. The UDC crew and booth will travel to S.T.O.M.P. and the Moab. Muni rides to meet your unicycling needs.
